India Leader to Russia

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
MOSCOW (AP) — Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi launches a week of Viet Nam peace efforts in Moscow today but the prospects are not good.

Arriving after visits to Cairo and Yugoslavia, Mrs. Gandhi will try in talks with Premier Alexei Kosygin and other officials to persuade the Soviet government to join Britain in reconvening the 1954 Geneva conference that ended the French Indochina War. Agreements reached at that conference theoretically are still in force, and the Soviet Union and Britain remain conference co-chairmen.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson visited Moscow in February in an unsuccessful effort to get the conference back in session. He is due back Saturday for another try as Mrs. Gandhi leaves, but there has been no public indication that the Soviet leaders have changed their position.

The Soviets in the past have taken the attitude that they are not a direct party to the conflict and therefore have no direct role to play in the settlement. Diplomats believe this cautious Soviet approach is based partly on reluctance to try publicly to influence the North Vietnamese government for fear of failing. It is also believed based on sensitiveness to Peking's charges that the Soviet leaders are selling out the Communist cause in Viet Nam to arrange joint Soviet-American rule of the world.

Cuba Increasing Censorship

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A newly arrived refugee said today that Cuba has increased its censorship of mail.

Felix Monzon, 28, a former messenger for the Cuban Telegraph Co., said government agents opened mail to and from the United States. If outgoing mail contained criticism of the Cuban government, the sender would be investigated, Monzon said.

He said many persons have been arrested for mailing out letters criticizing the Castro regime.

William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, was born Oct. 14, 1644.

As Usual, Mr. Rogers Was on Target

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I don't belong to an organized political party," Will Rogers once said. "I'm a Democrat."

As usual, the famous American humorist was on target. The Democratic party, then as now, brought under one tent politicians of widely divergent and often clashing viewpoints.

Had Rogers been talking about the GOP, he would not have struck a respondent chord. With rare exception — such as Theodore Roosevelt's falling out with William Howard Taft — the Republican identity was fixed for even the least attentive voter to see, its front united.

But now, four short months before the congressional elections, the elephant is as likely to go thundering off in one direction as another.

Whatever the cause — the schism that followed Barry Goldwater's nomination in 1964 or the adroitness of President Johnson in constructing a consensus that fans out on both sides of the political road — the GOP still is groping for a clearing in which to pitch its tent.

In a series of position papers top Republicans serving as a coordinating committee have forged a stand on transportation, water pollution, defense and, last week, on poverty and problems of the elderly.

But on civil rights legislation and the war in Viet Nam, two subjects that will be uppermost in the voter's mind in November, Republicans appear to be anything but united.

While Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen scorned Johnson's proposed ban on racial discrimination in all housing transactions as unconstitutional, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford is known to have privately counseled House Republicans to take no official stand — and thereby force the Democrats to stand up and be counted on a hot political issue.

All the while, liberal House Republicans headed by Rep. Charles M. Mathias Jr. of Maryland worked shoulder to shoulder with Democrats to produce a compromise proposal that stands a better chance of passing.

On Viet Nam, leading Republicans are scattered all over the lot. Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky, a former chairman of the Republican National Committee, calls for a selective blockade; Goldwater suggests the closing of the port of Haiphong by "sinking light ships in its very shallow and narrow channel."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, considered a possible vice-presidential candidate in 1968, calls the bombing of the Hanoi and Haiphong oil depots "the wrong decision"; Gov. George Romney of Michigan, a potential bidder for the presidential nomination, says he is in doubt about the fundamental policy behind the American presence in Asia.

This is not to suggest that Democrats are not divided on the Republicans, the "outs," who would seem to be most in need of developing clear-cut positions.

Buzzings of a Miniskirt Rebellion

By THEODORE A. EDIGER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There are buzzings of a miniskirt rebellion among owners of the world's loveliest legs.

Most of the 57 girls vying for the Miss Universe crown put their foot down on the short, short skirt. Some stand up for it. Still others skirt the issue.

The skirts came in for discussion during rehearsal breaks for Wednesday night's semifinals of the beauty contest. The finals are Saturday night.

Carol Whiteman of England, a country where the well-above-the-knee skirt is riding high, said she has one but can't decide whether to wear it. "I am tiny and it would make me look tinier," grinned the 5-foot-3 supermarket clerk from Southampton.

Latin-American beauties are in the vanguard of the mini-revolt. "You have to be careful how to sit down," commented Miss Chile, Stella Dunnage, 20, daughter of British parents.

The blue-eyed honey blonde added: "It (the mini-skirt) is antilesthetic. You look too short on top, and below that you look short, and then there are long legs."

Miss Panama, Dionisia Broce, was emphatic: "I wouldn't wear it if every other girl in the world wore it. You should hide your knees, which on most women are ugly."

Miss Korea, Yoon Quee-Young opined: "It is not so good." She wouldn't say why, just giggled.

Miss Guyana, Umbela Van Sluytman, commented: "It looks lovely on girls who have long legs, but not short girls."

One of the longest-legged, 5-foot-9 Lynn Carol de Jager of South Africa, voted yes: "If it's new, I'll like it. Anything comfortable."

The shortest of this year's Miss Universe set, Lesbia Murieta, who represents free Cuba, said: "It isn't elegant. If you want to show your legs, wear shorts."

Miss Japan, Atsumi Ikeno, said, "It's nice for those who look good in it. I wear one once in a while because I'm a fashion model."

But Miss Ireland, Gladys Waller, said "I like it on young girls but not on me."

She's 21.

Penal Number Brought Arrest

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Police were called recently after a young man was spotted at the State House wearing a blue denim shirt with "New York State Penitentiary-02196" stamped in black letters on the back.

Robert W. Russell, 22, explained to police that he makes the shirts to sell.

Magazine Sued for $6 Millions

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The wife of millionaire industrialist Russell A. Firestone Jr. has filed suit for $6 million against Time, Inc., over a story that appeared in Life magazine.

Mary Alice Firestone, whose suit was filed Monday in Circuit Court, asked $3 million in actual damages and $3 million in punitive damages.

The suit alleged that "injurious photographs and quotations" were published in a Life story on snooping by private detectives.

Mrs. Firestone is suing her husband for separate maintenance and child custody. He has filed a counterclaim for divorce.

CLERGYMEN DOWNGRADED

BETHANY, W. Va. (AP) — The "image of the pastor" has fallen to a low ebb, the Rev. Dr. Forrest L. Richeson, president elect of the Christian (Disciples) Churches, said in a Bethany College lecture series here.

"The American clergyman has lost prestige," he said, citing as one reason the pressure on ministers "for numerical success and visible results." Also, "he is often handicapped by laymen in the church who do not want the church to change and who fear anything new or different."

Obituaries

Lester Osburn

Lester Osburn, 52, a native of Hope, died Sunday at his home in East Detroit. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

The body will lie in state at the home until funeral time.

JUST LIKE THE MOVIES—Boy gets girl. Actress Stefanie Powers and actor Gary Lockwood will be wed in September. Miss Powers, 23, is starring in a new series, "The Girl From U.N.C.L.E." which will be on television in the fall. Lockwood has just returned to Hollywood from London having completed a movie, "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Philandering Professor

Dear Helen: For a college girl I guess I'm quite naive, never having dated much because of strict parents.

I'm at summer school, working in the office part-time, and often alone. There's an assistant professor who is a real dream, and just full of charm, flattery, animal magnetism, and all. He is about 35 and married. He's thoughtful, kind, and generous too — in fact, my ideal.

He leaves things in the office so he can come back and get them, and he's always giving me compliments, asking me to take an hour off, or meet him after classes. I pretend he's kidding, but I am about to fall for his lovely words, especially when he looks unhappy. I've heard his wife is a real troublemaker.

I never thought I would be a homeworker, but aren't there sometimes extenuating circumstances? My roommate tells me his flattery is real nowhere, but she's the jealous type, who wanted him herself once.

I've changed this so he won't recognize himself. Am I a — Foolish Virgin

Dear F.V.: Yes, and stay that way! If this married man's flattery gets him somewhere, it will not be to the altar. — H.

Dear Helen: Please print the wildest letter you got this week. — Curious

Dear Curious: How's this one?

Dear Helen: I am 13 and have a boyfriend who is out of this galaxy. He is in another universe and he contacted me through mental telepathy. He says when I am 18 he will come for me to live in his world. I don't tell anyone because they wouldn't believe me, but it's true. Do you believe me? — Hazel

Dear Hazel: Frankly, no. But then again, maybe you are not pulling my leg. Eighteenth century maidens dreamed of Prince Charming on a white charger, so why shouldn't space age girls conjure up their Dream Man "out of this galaxy?"

Imagination is fun, honey, but when you confuse it with reality you'd better shoot a hole in cloud Nine and come down to earth. — H.

Dear Helen: I wanted contact lenses and my parents said I'd have to bring my grades up to "B" average, before I could get them. So I did, and then they said, "You'll have to earn the money first." So I earned over $200.00. But while I was earning I didn't do all my garden work well enough for them, so they said I'd have to make that up before I got contacts. I made it up, and NOW they say wait till the end of next school term and if I get an "A" average, I can

Robbins Portraying Raw Life

By EDDY GILMORE

Associated Press Writer LONDON (AP) — "I never think of my books as sexy," said Harold Robbins, author of "The Carpetbaggers." "Sex alone never made a best seller."

Here to launch his new book, "The Adventurers," the American author said, "I have nothing in the bank. Of course I'm owed between $5 and $7 million.

"If I see half of it before I die, I'll be lucky."

Urged to talk about himself, Robbins went on:

"I'm a product of the Depression. For any kid who grew up in the Depression, the first thing he does is survive. I've done many, many things. I was a film company vice president making $2,000 a week. I quit to write. "I lost my wife at the same time. She said, 'You've got to be crazy to give up $2,000 a week.'"

"The Carpetbaggers" earned a million dollars plus, said Robbins. "Every penny went to pay off debts. Next year I wrote another million-dollar best-seller and kept just under 7 per cent after alimony and taxes. The more I earned to pay off back taxes, the more fresh taxes I incurred."

He paused and then continued: "I'm now beginning to keep more of what I earn. It's given me freedom — freedom to write my novels at a more leisurely pace."

Denying that his novels are based on a commercial formula of sex and violence, he said: "It just happens that real life is raw and that's the way I portray it."

alienating our loyal older fans.

On this year's spring tour, more teen-agers came to see us than ever before. Several times I was told, "Mr. Welk, I'm one teen - ager who enjoys your music."

I'm sure that our young entertainers, Barbara Boylan and Bobby Burgess, the Lennon Sisters and the Blanders, have contributed to this.

We watch the charts for what the kids like and are including some of the modern beat in our music. We now use two guitars on our show, and as many as three on recordings. The kids like guitars.

Back to that appellation, "square."

In the reading Aladdin has done several times on our show — "The Square," by Charles S. Brower — the term means loving your country, honoring your father and mother and following the rules of fair play — the principles that made our country great. Under this definition, I'm proud to be called a "square."

I've probably been kidded as much as any figure in the entertainment business. This sort of thing is part of America. Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy were the targets of some very witty satire and accepted it in good spirit.

A few years ago the very talented Stan Freeberg put out a popular record, an extremely funny take-off on me and on our orchestra. I enjoyed it immensely. Not only did Stan do an excellent job but he used "Wine," which is my composition.

HEROIC ASTRO-DOG IN OUTER SPACE! MERCHANTS MOVIE WEDNESDAY Mat. 1:15

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Watch out, Frank Sinatra, here comes Mrs. Miller with her version of "Strangers In The Night."

Capitol Records is rushing a version by Elva Miller onto the market, and the Sinatra hit song may never be the same. But then, the whole record business hasn't been quite the same since Mrs. Miller came on the scene.

Her album, "Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits," has already sold 150,000 copies, a highly respectable figure. Her style? It has defied description. Suffice to say that she sings teen-age record hits in a mature contralto. She also whistles.

Frankly 58, Mrs. Miller has no illusions about her achievement. "I'll go along with it as long as it lasts," she remarked. "It would be foolish at my age to become starry-eyed. If all this comes to an end, I still have my home and my many interests. And I will have had a lot of fun."

It all started because Mrs. Miller, an amateur singer of Claremont, Calif., made regular visits to a Hollywood studio to record songs, mostly of a sacred nature, for her own pleasure. On one occasion, her accompanist, Fred Bock, slipped some rock 'n' roll numbers among her hymns.

"I think you're having fun with Mrs. Miller," she said. But she went along with him. It happened that Capitol had been searching for an operatic voice to render beatle-type hits. Mrs. Miller seemed an ideal choice.

Most of her numbers were recorded in one take, to preserve the ingenious quality. Some of the errors were deliberate, as in one number when she was instructed to begin singing a half-beat behind the orchestra.

Concerning the sales of her records, Mrs. Miller declared: "I don't understand it, but teen-agers seem to be buying them.

As I see it, there are two kinds of teen-agers. There are the sophisticated ones; who dress like Sonny and Cher; they don't buy my album. Then there are the teen-agers who dress neatly; they are the ones who do buy my records."

Mrs. Miller, who had done no real performing since her high school days in Dodge City, Kan., now finds herself in show business. She has appeared on the TV programs of Ed Sullivan, Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and Art Linkletter. During the Griffin show she found herself sharing a dressing room with Sally Rand — "a nice person; she lives in Glendora, not far from Claremont."

Recently she made her acting debut, portraying a dance-hall singer in a new TV series, "The Road West." Next month she plays her first night club engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

Does she have any qualms about appearing in night clubs?

"Not as long as the stage is separated from the audience," she said. "I like to sing. What people do in the auditorium's their own affair."

Mrs. Miller has now had to acquire a manager, press agent, tax lawyer, accountant, etc. She is also planning to move to nearby Glendale to be closer to the entertainment capital. Her husband, a retired rancher, John Miller, is sympathetic with her career.

"He knows I am mature enough to realize that things like this run their course," explained Mrs. Miller.

A few well-chosen words to a nasty person may stop back-biting.

Russia Told Olympic May Bar Them

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer U.S. officials warned today that the Soviet Union might be barred from the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City because of its "shocking and incredible" action in pulling out of its dual track meet with the United States.

The Soviet cancellation of its participation in the meet, scheduled for July 23-24 in Los Angeles, came without warning Monday from Moscow, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported the cancellation was in protest of American participation in the Viet Nam war.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, said in Frankfurt, Germany, that he planned to fly to Moscow to see if he could still work things out.

Hull talked by telephone with Glenn Davis, director of the Los Angeles meet. "Col. Hull told me," Davis said, "that he could not believe the Soviet sports people would jeopardize their standing with the International Amateur Athletic Federation by failing to complete their contract to compete in Los Angeles."

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, was not immediately available for comment in Chicago. The IOC and the IAAF have worked together in the past.

"This news is shocking and incredible," Clifford H. Buck, president of the AAU, said in Denver, Colo. "We are particularly distressed because this puts the entire amateur sports exchange with the Soviet Union in jeopardy."

Tass said the U.S.-Russian basketball series of games, scheduled to start in Moscow July 25, also had been canceled, but that the swimming competition between the United States and the Soviets, scheduled for Moscow Saturday and Sunday, was not affected because three other nations were entered.

It was uncertain whether the Polish-USA dual track meet would be held as scheduled this Saturday and Sunday at Berkeley, Calif. Obviously disturbed by the news from Moscow, Zbigniew Keskiewicz, secretary-general of the Polish Track and Field Association, said in Warsaw that "we will reserve any comments until our team meeting."

Travelers Stumbling

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)

—Arkansas' stumbling Travelers hope to regroup tonight when they take on league-leading Amarillo in a Texas League baseball game at Amarillo.

The Travelers went down to their fourth straight defeat at the hands of Albuquerque Monday night, 3-2. It was the Dodgers' fifth consecutive victory.

In other action, Amarillo hammered El Paso 12-5 to take a 2-2 game edge over second place Arkansas while Dallas-Fort Worth bounced Austin 6-2. Tom Hutton drove home Willie Crawford in the sixth inning with the run that beat the Travelers. Crawford had led off the inning with a triple, his 12th of the year.

The Sonics belted 21 hits off six El Paso pitchers, including back-to-back homers in the third by Elijah Johnson and John Hoffman.

Dallas-Fort Worth, scoring only its second victory in 11 games, pushed across four runs in the seventh.

000 101 000—2-1 Houston, Granger (8) and Gel-straight Clay Courts triumph over Foster, Gomez (7), Laurit today.

Also making their first appearance in the tournament will be second-seeded Cliff Richey, who conquered Raisted in the Western Open; third-seeded Charles Parassell, and fourth-seeded Martin Riessen.

While Graebner was holding his temper and winning, Peter Fishback of Great Neck, N.Y., was letting his go and losing, 6-4, 6-4, to seventh-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif.

Run Jackson, a rookie with the New York Knickerbockers averaged 29.8 points a game for Clark College in Atlanta last season. He's a Chicago native and also played for Wisconsin.

Poland Also Cancels Out Track Meet

WARSAW, Poland (AP)

Following the lead of the Soviet Union, Polish officials today canceled their track and field team's trip to Berkeley, Calif., next weekend to compete against a U.S. team.

An official of the Polish sports ministry said the Polish Track and Field Association decided to cancel the meet because of the Viet Nam war.

The Soviet government announced Monday that its track team would not meet the U.S. team in Los Angeles July 23-24 and said the Soviet men's and women's teams had refused to participate because of the war.

In Moscow today U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler protested the Soviet action and told Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko Washington did not accept the report that the athletes themselves decided to cancel the meet.

Colla Trying to Hold Onto Tourney Lead

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Associated Press Sports Writer MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ralph Colla of Youngstown, Ohio, a determined teenager, worked on the practice range until nearly midnight Monday, preparing to try to hang onto his qualifying lead in the National Public Links Golf Tournament.

Colla, 17, who will enter Ohio State on a scholarship this fall, was the only player in a field of 150 to match par 71 on the rugged, 6,765-yard Brown Deer course in Monday's opening qualifying round.

The trials end today with the 64 low scorers entering double rounds of match play Wednesday leading to the 36-hole championship Saturday.

Colla, a bespectacled 165-pounder who was No. 1 player three years for the Cardinal Mooney High School in Youngstown, fashioned a 37-34 against the 35-36 standard. His closing nine, best of the tourney, came with birdie putts in 15 and 6 feet on the 12th and 18th holes.

Heat Is on in National Tennis Play

By KEN HARTNETT

Associated Press Sports Writer MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The heat was enough to make a tennis player start talking to himself.

And that was what many a player was doing Monday as the 1966 National Clay Courts Tennis Championships opened in 90-degree temperature.

But not Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, who scored a convincing 6-3, 6-1 victory over Australia's Gary Hocking in the first round.

The fifth-seeded Graebner is trying to erase the temperamental label.

"It's not really being temperamental anyway," said the former Big Ten champion out of Northwestern. "It is temperamental only to the extent that you get mad at yourself when you miss the shots you feel you should make."

"Anyway, I'm trying hard not to get mad at myself. You shouldn't get mad, or so I'm told by everybody. So I'm trying hard."

Graebner had the highest seeding of any player to participate Monday. Defending champion and top-seeded Dennis Ralston, opens his bid for a third straight Clay Courts triumph over Foster, Gomez (7), Laurit today.

Also making their first appearance in the tournament will be second-seeded Cliff Richey, who conquered Raisted in the Western Open; third-seeded Charles Parassell, and fourth-seeded Martin Riessen.

Football Just Around the Corner Now

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Are you feeling the heat today?

It could be a lot worse. Suppose you were jogging around in football clothes?

In July?

Most of the teams in the National and American football leagues open training this week with some veterans joining rookies for the early workouts.

With the regular season still six weeks away, the word around the camps was take it easy, especially on those valuable commodities, the quarterbacks.

John Rauch, coach of the Oakland Raiders, dressed signal callers Cotton Davidson, Tom Flores and Charlie Green in red jerseys and made them off-limits to ambitious linemen.

Davidson suffered a shoulder injury in an early workout last year and missed virtually the entire AFL season.

At St. Petersburg, Fla., Coach George Wilson sent the Miami Dolphins' quarterbacks through a drill on passing tactics. The top student was Rick Norton, the No. 1 draft choice from the University of Kentucky.

Norton has been held out of contact work so far and probably will miss it for another two weeks. He is recuperating from a knee operation.

Another highly touted rookie quarterback, Randy Johnson of the Atlanta Falcons, impressed his coaches with a brisk workout. Johnson had suffered a back injury in last Saturday's Coaches All-America game at Atlanta.

"Johnson looked good throwing the ball today, but we still don't know his exact condition," said Coach Norb Hecker. "We won't know until the X rays are analyzed."

Johnson, a graduate of Texas A&M, was named Most Valuable Player in the All-America game.

Otto Graham, starting his first season as a pro coach, greeted 42 rookies and 15 veterans at Washington's training camp in Carlisle, Pa. Graham sent the Redskins through their first workout today.

Most of the pro clubs welcomed back rookies who had played in the Atlanta game but they'll be on hand only for a day or so before departing again, this time to work out for the College All-Star Game in Chicago against the Green Bay Packers Aug. 5.

The New York Giants had three rookies in the revolving door, all of them tackles. Francis Peay of Missouri, Don Davis of Los Angeles State, and Charley Harper of Oklahoma State, all played at Atlanta, reported to the Giants' camp at Fairfield, Conn., and will check out for All-Star Game workouts Thursday.

Davis shook Giant coaches by weighing in at 319 pounds, about 39 pounds over his normal playing weight. "I'm a little heavy," he admitted, "But I'll get down."

Coach Allie Sherman said his training camp "is not a reducing salon," but Davis on an all-meat, no-bread diet.

50,000 on Hand for All Star Game

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer ST. LOUIS (AP) — Walt Alston, manager of the National League All-Stars, and Sam Mele, the American League manager, were running down their line-ups when the discussion suddenly took a turn toward Sandy Koufax.

"I hope," said Alston, "Koufax pitches better than in his last start."

"That," interjected Mele, "wasn't last fall, was it?"

Then he laughed. He hadn't been able to do that last fall when Koufax pitched the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-0 victory over Mele's Twins in the seventh game of the World Series.

And today didn't figure to start out as any laughing matter for Mele either with Koufax serving up the first pitches in the 37th annual All-Star Game.

For the Dodgers' great left-hander, who holds the world record for strikeouts, has pitched four no-hitters and one perfect game, went out at new Busch Memorial Stadium before a full house of some 50,000 to make the first All-Star start of his career.

Koufax shied away from placing any extra significance on the fact that he was starting for the first time since he became a regular on the All-Star team in 1961.

"It's an honor to be picked for the team," he said. "There are other things which dictate whether you play or not. Alston just asked me if I'd prefer to start or relieve. I said start."

But Alston, in explaining his reason for picking Koufax over San Francisco's Juan Marichal, pointedly said what modesty wouldn't let Koufax say.

"There's not much to choose between them," Alston said. "Koufax has never had the honor of starting. He is a start enough to deserve a start."

"And I think he's enthused," Koufax started the game with a 1-0 record—he won last year when he pitched one inning relief—and a 0.00 earned run average for his three appearances in which he allowed three hits, walked two and struck out two.

He was opposed by Denny McLain, a 13-game winner for the Detroit Tigers who has won only two less games than Koufax.

McLain started right off with center fielder Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, who was tapped for the leadoff spot in the fifth time in his career and took a .389 All-Star average into the game.

Mays was followed by right fielder Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, left fielder Hank Aaron of Atlanta, first baseman Willie McCovey of the Giants, third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago, catcher Joe Torre of the Braves, second baseman Jim Lefebvre of the Dodgers and shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati.

Aaron is the majors' home run leader with 26. Torre has 21. Mays has 20, Santo 18, McCovey 17 and Lefebvre 15.

And on the bench were outfielders Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh and Riche Allen of Philadelphia with 22 and 21, respectively, and third baseman Jim Ray Hart of the Giants with 20.

The American League homer hammerers were led by center fielder Al Kaline of Detroit and left fielder Frank Robinson of Baltimore with 21 each, first baseman George Scott of Boston with 18, and third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore and right fielder Tony Oliva of Minnesota and 17 each.

Shortstop Dick McAuliffe of the Tigers led off, followed by Kaline, Frank Robinson, Oliva, Brooks Robinson, Scott, catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and second baseman Bobby Knoop of California.

Alston was expected to follow Koufax on the mound with Marichal. He also had Jim Bunning of Philadelphia, Gaylord Perry of San Francisco, Bob Veale of Pittsburgh, Billy McCool of Cincinnati, Claude Raymond of Houston and Phil Regan of the Dodgers in his bullpen.

Mele was expected to follow with either of two Cleveland pitchers, Sonny Siebert or Gary Bell. His bullpen also had Steve Barber of Baltimore, Jim Kaat of Minnesota, Jim Hunter of Kansas City, Pete Richert of Washington and Mel Stottlemyre of New York.

Rookies Hoping for Double Play

By SANDY PADWE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Cleon Jones was 10 years old when the Boston Braves scout came down to Mobile, Ala., in 1952 and signed Henry Aaron to a contract for their Eau Claire, Wis., club in the old Northern League.

He was 13 when the New York Giants came into Mobile and signed Willie McCovey to a contract with Saundersville in the Georgia State League.

And he was 14 when the Chicago Cubs came to nearby Whistler, Ala., to sign an outfielder named Billy Williams.

Like any other Negro kid around Mobile, Cleon didn't have much time to be impressed. He just picked up his bat, his glove and his baseball shoes and hoped that some day he, too, would attract the scout who would pay the bus fare out of one life and into another.

Tommie Agee, who went to high school with Cleon at the Mobile County Training School, had things figured the same way.

They weren't taking chances either.

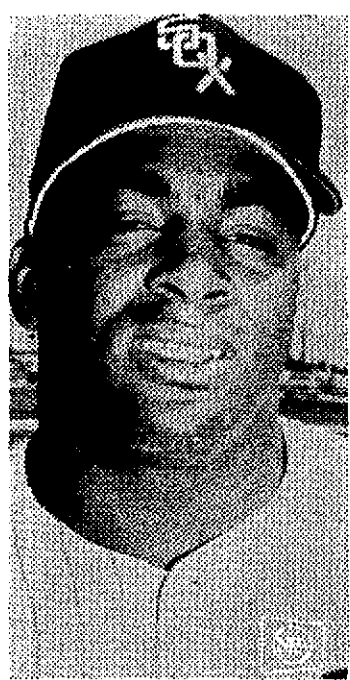

"We played football and ran track, too," Cleon said. "In football I was a half-back and Tommie was an end. In track we were sprinters and were on the relay teams. I could do a 9.7 for the 100. Tommie was about the same. In baseball we lost one game in three years."

After high school, both wound up at Grambling College. "I had a football scholarship," Cleon said, "and Tommie was there for baseball."

"At that time, football was my sport. Illinois and Minnesota offered me scholarships as well as all the small college powers in the South."

Incident in Times Square

By TOM TIEDE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—There were a dozen of them. Youngish, somewhat seedy, and each wearing a black band of mourning on his left sleeve. They were gathered in Times Square to demonstrate against the war.

"Peace, peace, we want peace," they chanted. It was rush hour in the city. Thick traffic. A slight rain fell.

"Hey, hey, LBJ, how many soldiers did you kill today?"

They marched in a tight oval. Some carried posters. One, a hunched chap with a beret, carried something he claimed to be printed in blood.

"Not my blood," he barked. "You kidding? I'm a lover, not a fighter."

His name was Al, 30 years old, fat-fleshed, and a complexion like a white sidewall tire. He was the leader, apparently, for he was not marching and his feet did not hurt. He was leaning on a brick store-front and handing out leaflets.

"Hey, here ya are. Thank ya! It's free, m'am. Bring back our boys. Thank ya! One for you, sir? How about you? Stop the war in Viet Nam. Read our side of it. Thank ya!"

A small knot of curious pedestrians straddled the curb stone.

"Peace, peace, we want peace."

"Here ya are, lady. Stop the war. Thank ya!"

"Hey, hey, LBJ, how many soldiers did you kill today?"

A man with a dog got his leash tangled around Al's legs. An old matron came by, stopped a few feet distant, said: "You should be ashamed," and then continued on.

She was followed by an attractive brunette.

"Here ya go, honey," Al said. "Take one for free."

"No, thank you," the girl replied.

"Come on, it'll do ya good."

As Al reached for the girl's arm, one of the bystanders moved in front of him. The fellow was about 21, wearing sun tans and a pocket-length slicker. His hair hung damp to the tops of his brows.

"Hey, man," he said to Al, "you got a big mouth."

Al frowned and stiffened. The girl turned immediately and hurried away. The rest of the crowd, demonstrators included, grew silent.

"Just giving an opinion," Al said to the youth in the slicker.

"When you gonna burn your draft card?" the boy replied.

Al chewed his lip. He said something to the effect that he didn't like being pushed. The kid told him to pack it up and leave. Al, the smaller of the pair, if the heavier, took a backstep. But the lad followed to close them tight again.

"I don't want no trouble," Al said.

"Then butt out of here."

"Look, I got a right..."

The boy dropped a book he had in his hand. It slapped the pavement like a pistol shot. Al shook all over. "I got a right to my opinion," he repeated. His face grew red and his collar tight.

Then, carefully, the fat man named Al picked up two posters he had placed against a fire hydrant. He swore under his breath. "O.K., dammit, I'm going." Then he buttoned up his sweater and quickly moved to the corner, around it and on up Broadway.

"Good for you, young man," somebody said to the fellow in the slicker.

"Aw," he answered, "people like that get me."

The rain was heavier by this time. Traffic was tightening. The demonstrators, mostly forgotten, held a brief conference, then began the slow, circling march once again.

"Hey, hey, LBJ, how many soldiers did you kill today?"

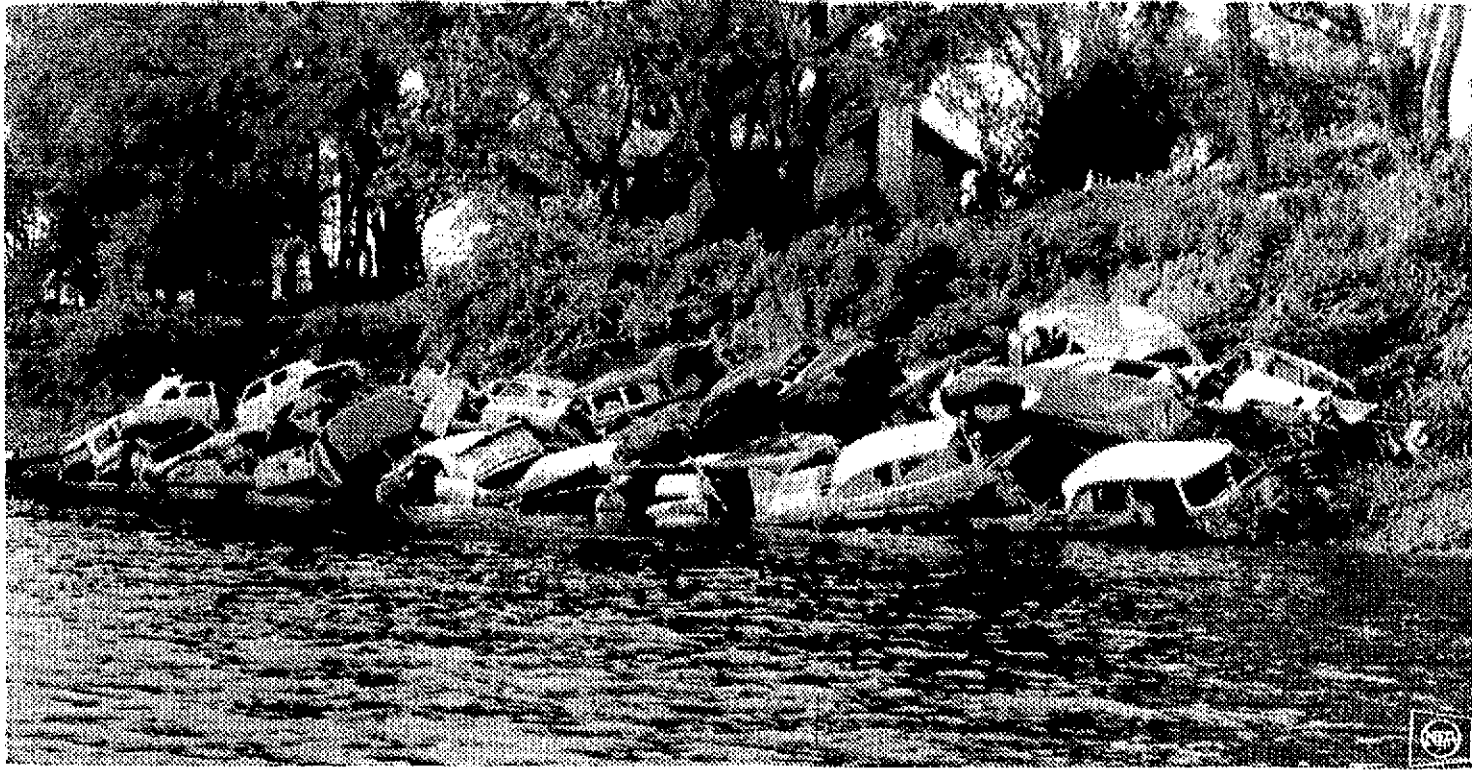

The boy in the slicker watched as the onlookers broke apart and drifted. Then he hunched his shoulders and began to cross the street.

"Where you from anyway?" a fellow asked him politely.

"Philadelphia," the boy said. "I'm here job hunting."

"Oh," the guy smiled, and they both reached the other curb. "You must be just out of high school."

"No," the boy said, smiling. "I'm just out of Viet Nam."

Frenchmen Love Our Comic Strips

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS — (NEA) — One aspect of American influence which has become completely integrated in the life of Frenchmen is the comic strip. More than that. Today it is considered here to be the most significant expression of pop art.

So much so that the French Center for the Study of Literature of Graphic Expression (CELEG, for the initials) has recently announced its purpose: to "defend the physical and moral integrity of the comic strip against the barbarian prejudice which refuses to admit it as a major form of art."

Giff-Wiff, the Center's magazine, asks, "What is the difference between Launcelot in quest of the Grail and Tarzan, Lord of the Jungle?"

As further argument, it stresses the fact that the comic strip is the only form of expression reaching a wider audience than television. One comic, for instance, is estimated to have some 12 million readers. On the artistic level, Giff-Wiff poses the question: "Is it possible to deny the affinity between the sculpture of Michelangelo and Tarzan's noble, writhing, muscular torso in mortal combat with a panther?"

A Giff-Wiff, incidentally, is a small, amphibious cross between a cat and a fish. It would be easy to domesticate except that it lives on precious stones.

CELEG's membership includes professors of the Faculty of Science and the National Research Center, a member of the conservative French Academy, newspaper pundits, pop singers and business tycoons. Their chief adviser is Alain Resnais, avant-garde filmmaker, who has been a student of the comic strip for years and owns one of the finest collection of cartoons in Europe.

The appearance in France of the comic strip, according to a distributor, goes back to the beginning of the century. But it began to be widely featured in the Paris press between the two World Wars.

Today many papers carry anything from half or entire pages of comic strips. Some are French but the majority, and certainly the most popular, are American. Alley Oop, Dick Tracy, Peanuts, Popeye, Tarzan, Superman and Batman are household names.

Giff-Wiff explains that if, in 1895, movies were heralded as the art of the 20th century, cartoons are definitely that of the 21st century.

The popularity of American cartoonists is attributed to the fact that they are first, more prolific and, secondly designed to appeal to adults and not to children, as do their French counterparts.

One of CELEG's main worries is that the comic strip is constantly exposed to finicky blue-pencilling by publishers or deskmen whose pleasure is to mutilate, alter and stifle cartoon characters.

"They delete words such as 'rat flink' from the balloon, remove the sensual curve from a lady's bosom or cover her legs with a skirt. In addition, the Educational Vigilance Commission, by virtue of a law passed in 1945, bans all strips portraying violence and bloodshed from children's magazines and weeklies.

Along with the comics, French newspapers have introduced the daily illustrated strip serializing famous literary works and novels. More recent is the serialization of the Bible. For Frenchmen who have not had the benefits of higher education, this has proved an attractive means of boning up on history and the great literary works.

Says a caricaturist Edmee Broutin, "Why, the first thing my husband does when he opens his evening paper is to read the illustrated strips and then he finds out what is happening in the world."

GOP Proposal to Strengthen Technicians

U.N. — Republicans WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans proposed today six steps to strengthen and modernize the United Nations, including a special 1,000-man brigade of technicians and experts for emergency peacekeeping.

The proposals were included in a report adopted by the Republican Coordinating Committee at a meeting June 27-28 and released today.

The report criticized what it called the decline of U.S. leadership in the United Nations as "but another measure of the opportunities thrown away by the present administration."

Saying the United Nations should have "the active support of the people and the government of the United States," the report added:

"Republicans take a realistic view of what the United Nations can and cannot do. We do not believe, as do some, that it is a panacea for the problems of the world; nor do we believe it works against our national interest. Experience has shown that the U.N. on many occasions has been useful in easing international tensions and in implementing our own foreign policy.

The report recommended consideration of these points to strengthen and modernize the organization:

Expansion of the military advisers' group in the office of the secretary general.

A plan proposed by several GOP members of Congress to create "a first brigade of 1,000 technicians and logistical experts in a peacekeeping force" for use in emergencies.

Some means of recognizing the fact that certain nations contribute more than others while preserving the basic principle of equality of states.

Screening applications for membership to determine whether the applicant state "can support the full responsibilities of membership" and establishing a special status in the United Nations for certain small independent units that could not support full membership responsibilities.

An all-out effort to set up a dependable system for financing the organization.

Action by the administration to call a conference of U.N. members to modernize the organization's charter, including measures to solve the organizational, administrative and financial problems of the United Nations and what the report referred to as re-establishment of the leadership role of the United States as a "major creative force" within the organization.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Prize Contests

"COUNT THE DOTS AND WIN A COLOR TV"

So said the poster in a furniture store window. In case of a tie, duplicate prizes were to be awarded.

Sure enough, two contestants—a man and a woman—turned in answers that were exactly right. After due deliberation, the store named the woman as the winner on grounds of "neatness and legibility." The man was offered a small radio as a consolation prize.

But when the man filed suit, the court held that he too was entitled to a television set. The court said the store had no right to make new rules after the contestants, by submitting their entries, had already accepted the original offer.

For the contest created in a prize contest is just as binding, in the eyes of the law, as any other kind of contract. A winning contestant can enforce his rights in court.

But suppose the rules say: "The decision of the contest judges shall be final."

Even then, if the judges tamper with the rules or use other trickery to foil a winner, the law will still uphold his claim to whatever he has legitimately won.

On the other hand, you cannot insist on a prize if you yourself have not lived up to the rules. For example:

A car dealer offered a valuable gift certificate as first prize in a drawing. But according to the rules of the contest, ticket stubs had to be deposited "in person" at the dealer's showroom.

As it turned out, the holder of the winning number had sent his stub in by messenger. A court ruled later that, since he had not complied with the terms of the offer, he had not earned a right to the prize.

What if the contest is an illegal lottery? Then, even if you do win, you should not expect a court to enforce your claim. As a general rule, the courts will not lend their aid to carry out an illegal contract.

The Supreme Court has given the reason: "No court of justice can be made the handmaid of iniquity. There can be no legal remedy for that which is itself illegal."

Lighthouses To Be Stocked With Food

PERTH (AP) — The Australian government has decided to equip 100 remote light houses with emergency army-type combat rations.

The caches of food will provide emergency sustenance for shipwrecked mariners who seek help at unmanned lighthouses.

On April 25, 1963, the trawler Nor 6 struck rocks on Dirk Harlow Island, 500 miles from Perth, and sank with the loss of three lives.

Skipper John James Drinan saved himself by climbing into the boat's three-foot-deep icebox. He kept himself alive on 20 oranges and nine raw eggs.

On the 16th day he constructed a raft by using part of the icebox door, and paddled to shore seeking food. He broke into the remote South Passage lighthouse, but there was no food or water there.

He returned to his icebox and was picked up at sea the following day, May 12, by a passing boat.

The Federal Minister for Shipping and Transport, Gordon Freeth, said that since the Drinan incident a full examination had been made of the feasibility and cost of storing caches of food on remote lighthouses for anyone who is shipwrecked.

The ration pack would contain meat, vegetables, milk, sugar, butter, biscuits and tins of water, and would be sufficient to sustain 10 men for 24 hours.

The caches would be stored in the ground to preserve the rations for more than 18 months. Notices would indicate the location of the supplies.

Twenty of the remote lighthouses are on the rugged West Australian coast that has claimed many shipwrecks and numerous lives in past years.

Stocking of the lighthouses will start early in July.

NOTICE

Due to the increased cost of maintaining dependable emergency ambulances and trained personal the Herndon-Cornelius and the Oakcrest Funeral Home must increase local ambulance service to $10.00 per call, effective July 15, 1966.

Even though hundreds of Funeral Home throughout the country have discontinued ambulance service, we believe this is a humanitarian service, and we will continue to offer this service as long as possible.

Q—In a recent column you recommended sodium hypochlorite solution to remove a sweaty odor from clothing. What strength should be used?
A—If you use a household hypochlorite such as Clorox, one teaspoon to a gallon of water is the recommended concentration. Observe the warnings about fabrics that can't be treated in this way. Some authorities believe that thorough washing with a detergent followed by rinsing in plain water is just as effective.

Q—Five different doctors have said I have a nervous stomach. Is this serious? What treatment would you recommend?
A—A nervous stomach or gastric neurosis may be due to different causes. Some emotional difficulty, such as financial worries, an unhappy home life, an unsympathetic boss or anxieties that started in childhood is usually the underlying cause. The condition is not serious but may be very hard to get rid of. For this reason your doctor may want to reassure you, give you some fatherly advice about rearranging your life, and prescribe medicines to calm your nerves and relieve your stomach symptoms.

Q—My husband was hospitalized for several weeks with "antral gastritis and prolapsed stomach." Aside from giving him a bland diet what can we do to prevent a recurrence?
A—Antral gastritis is an inflammation of the stomach at its antral or lower end. A prolapsed or so-called fallen stomach is a normal finding in a tall thin person and has no clinical significance. Once the gastritis is cured, thorough chewing of one's food and relaxed peaceful surroundings at mealtime are more important than a strict bland diet.

Q—Is it necessary to have surgery for hemorrhoids that bleed occasionally? Could the bleeding be a symptom of cancer?
A—Keeping the stools soft will help prevent piles from bleeding but most bleeding piles must eventually be removed. This is the only sure cure. Since bleeding from the rectum is also a symptom of cancer, your doctor should determine the source of the blood.

Q—My diagnosis when I came out of the hospital was chronic cholecystitis with pylorospasm. What does this mean?
A—Cholecystitis is inflammation of the gall bladder and is usually caused by an infection. Pylorospasm is a spasmodic contraction of the outlet of the stomach that is usually congenital. It may cause the stomach to empty more slowly than normal.

Response Aids In Good Score

The South hand shown yesterday and repeated today was actually held in a duplicate game.

This was a pretty strong duplicate game and at eight of the 13 tables South responded one spade and wound up going down one at a two spade contract after North rebid one no-trump and passed at two spades.

These South players were all lucky in their choice of partners. There are some players who might have treated the two spade rebid as forward going and found a further bid with North's cards, but these Norths respected the two spade call as a sign off and passed.

At the five tables where South elected to pass West reopened the bidding with one heart. In no instance did North or South find a further bid and each table produced a different result. At two tables East played three no-trump. One East was held to

At another table East made the conservative bid of one no-trump after West's heart bid and played it there making three. The other two Easts raised hearts. Both Wests made three odd but one was in game and his North-South opponents were rewarded with a top score.

Note that all South players who chose to respond came out with good scores. This doesn't happen all the time. Sometimes the pass works out as the winning decision.

Miniature Racing Big Thing Now

By WAYMAN C. DUNLAP
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—"Drivers ready... thumbs up... go!" And go they do — miniature models of big-time racing cars at scale speeds of up to 200 miles per hour on twisting, turning slot car tracks that have popped up all over the nation.

The cars, scaled at 1-24th and 1-32nd, are complex miniatures of grand prix racing cars, stock cars, drag racers and—yes, even a Batmobile.

They are today to some what model trains and airplanes have been for the younger set, and the oldsters (over 12) too, of other years.

"It's the thrill and excitement of sports car racing without any of the danger," explained Chad Chapman, assistant manager of Park Plaza Raceways here.

Raceways is a $60,000 red-carpet operation, Chapman said, with much of the atmosphere and glamour of a big-time race track. There are five courses for drivers to compete on, each with miniature grandstands, landscaping and other paraphernalia of the racing world.

Time on each track varies in price according to its length and difficulty and whether a driver bring his own car and "controller."

The smallest track costs 25 cents for 15 minutes, and the largest costs $1.60 an hour. If a car and controller are rented, add another $1.00 an hour.

The cars are powered by a small electric motor attached to a chassis and connected through a set of gears to the rear wheels. The electric motor has wires that attach to two small metal braids separated by a plastic snout. The snout, when the car is set on the track, drops into a hollow groove on the track—the "slot"—from whence the sport gets its name. The metal braids then connect with a 12 volt direct current system that activates the motor.

The amount of current fed to the motor is governed by the controller in the driver's hand. He places his car on a colored slot, connects his controller to a similarly colored socket—and suddenly he's a member of the racing fraternity, junior division.

The time each driver has bought is automatically monitored by a time-clock type of machine. It cuts his slot off after the time he has bought is over.

A race is started by the call: "Drivers ready... thumbs up... go." Thumbs up means the driver's finger is lifted off the starter button on the controller.

Raceways sponsors regular sanctioned races, with car kits, movie passes, parts and similar items as prizes, Chapman said.

"We figure about 40 per cent of our drivers are over 18," he said, "and most of them own their own cars and controllers."

And as with real cars, these little ones can be "hopped up." Insiders know the secrets of rewinding the electric motor with a thicker gauge wire, installing special sponge rubber or silicone tires, and lightning the bodies.

A car, in kit form, can be purchased for as little as $1, but some high-performance motors cost four times that much. Controllers run from $3 to $14, depending on the quality and the manufacturer.

Raceways is the largest slot car track in Little Rock with five race courses. There is a track on Interstate 30, south of Little Rock, with three courses, two in Little Rock and one in North Little Rock with a single course. Fayetteville, Jonesboro and El Dorado also have tracks.

For the sports car or racing fan who can never come closer than the showroom window, owning a scale model Ferrari or Lotus that runs may be the next best thing.

SNOOZE ALARM—If a study confirms the theory that the number of times a driver adjusts a steering wheel is related to his alertness, tomorrow's cars may be equipped with yet another safety gadget—a "snooze alarm" that automatically alerts a driver dozing off or straying from the proper lane. Engineer Lee Summer at TRW Systems in Redondo Beach, Calif., where development is under way, briefs Patty Katznelson on the device mounted on the steering column to measure the number of times the driver moves the wheel. When frequency declines, the alarm sounds.

Being a Harem Girl Was Mostly a Bore

By KELLY SMITH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Life in a harem—a la Scheherazade—was mixed boredom, intrigue, fantasy and murder in a gilded cage where survival depended on winning the sultan's favor.

Despite "storybook" legend, says one close to the truth, it was not one long orgy. Lady Audrey Campbell, widow of a British diplomat who spent much of her life in Turkey, has studied the harem. She knew first-hand of the women freed from the last sultan's harem in 1909.

For the last two years, Lady Campbell has made her home here. Contrary to popular opinion, she says, girls were purchased rather than kidnapped. The sultan's emissaries paid high prices.

Once a girl was bought, she was shut away from the outside world. Recruits were coddled until puberty, then instructed in the fine arts of love in preparation for the day they might be chosen by the sultan.

The sultan's mother ruled the roost and gave candidates in-it final exams before they were presented to her son.

Lady Campbell says the harem was home for 300 women, or more. Favorites received special quarters and jewels. Servants were all women.

"It was a world of boredom and inertia, free from earthly cares, where the only events were the visits of the sultan, the only dramas, births and deaths."

"The only goal in life was to become the mother of a son and thereby enhance one's position in the harem."

Lady Campbell describes the sultan's visit to his harem. There was great excitement and strict protocol. Accompanied by his head eunuch, he passed through throngs of bedecked women in opulent gowns. Seating himself at a divan, the sultan inspected his girls.

If any aroused his interest, he asked her name from his mother. The girl then approached, kissed the royal divan and received the title "gudzed" or "chosen one."

The chosen girl was then pampered and polished until the sultan called—sometimes not for weeks or months. Sometimes, not ever.

When and if the call came, the chosen girl was led by the head eunuch to the sultan's bed-chamber. A eunuch at the door noted her arrival and exit times, the name, and later, any offspring with the sultan.

If a girl had more than one child, she acquired the rank of "harem" wife. But few children were allowed to survive.

—There were enough sons to ensure the sultan's succession. Sons brought in the nation with their mothers only a short time before being confined to separate quarters. Rivalry sometimes led to rival's sons.

But the harem gave some sons time with their mother and benefactor, their father. The sultan's sons were all well-to-do.

Congress Back After 10 Day Vacation

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress, ending a 10-day vacation today, barely has time to put down its suitcases before shouldering the burden of major decision on the Viet Nam War.

Both houses are expected to take up Tuesday the compromise version of a $17.4-billion bill to authorize procurement of military hardware and pave the way for an across-the-board pay raise for the armed services. Actual funds depend on appropriation measures to be considered later.

The authorization bill, substantially larger than administration recommendations, includes provision for several controversial items such as a nuclear frigate and a start on a second, and development of a new manned bomber and the Nike X antissile system.

The House next takes up its version of the $4.1-billion foreign aid authorization act, which for the first time would authorize foreign aid only a year at a time with a full review each year.

The Senate has a different version which may be considered late in the week, or more probably next week Viet Nam and foreign policy generally are certain to figure largely in the debate in both chambers.

The House has only minor matters before it today, but the Senate considers a House-passed bill to give federal civilian employees a pay raise of about 2.9 per cent, with improvements in fringe benefits.

The Senate, after acting on the defense authorization, is scheduled to take up legislation for stepping up programs to alleviate water and air pollution.

Later in the week, if time permits, the Senate is expected to renew a lively internal scrap on a proposal to add members of the Foreign Relations Committee to the special watchdog committee supervising the Central Intelligence Agency.

Present members of the watchdog committee, now drawn from the Armed Services and Appropriations committees, oppose enlargement.

BALLET TO TOUR RUSSIA

NEW YORK (AP)—American Ballet Theater's 46 dancers will tour Russia for six weeks this summer under the Cultural Presentations Program of the State Department.

The company will appear in Moscow, Minsk, Leningrad, Yalta and Kharkov.

The company will rehearse in New York, starting in mid-August, for a U. S. tour.

Last December the ballet became the first cultural organization to receive money directly from the federal government. It received grants and matching grants from the National Council of the Arts, totaling $350,000.

WALLED-UP TREASURE

LOVELL, Wyo. (AP)—Pettell Mangus recently purchased an old house for rental property. He started to remodel the old house and found about $1,000 in silver dollars and other assorted coins plastered in the walls of the kitchen.

Mangus said the coins were mostly dated between 1921 and 1923.

The house had been moved from nearby Kane, Ariz., to Lovell about 16 years ago by a stockbroker, George F. Roper, who died 10 years ago.

We Fought Also in Philippines--and Freed Them

Fellow travelers with the Communists are trying to give the United States a bad time over the air raids against Hanoi, using the propaganda line that the mere presence of our armed forces in South Viet Nam makes us suspect of aggression, of which the Hanoi raids are the clincher. Millions of Americans are puzzled over how to meet these scheming lies, especially when circulated among friendly countries. But history has a retort for us that is unanswerable.

In an earlier day we fought also in the Philippines. We fought first to free the islands from the Spanish. Then we fought a long tedious campaign in the bush to put down the revolt of the Filipino patriot Emilio Aguinaldo. We got him into a peace parley under a flag of truce, then grabbed him.

The world howled at American perfidy. But the uproar back in the United States was even louder. The upshot was that we made peace in the Philippines, turned Aguinaldo loose--and eventually gave his country independence, which was our people's intent from the beginning.

Sometimes the bureaucrats or the armed forces lag behind the American people's intent--but at intent eventually prevails. Our flag and our troops never go anywhere for purposes of conquest. Freedom always follows. So will it be in Viet Nam. Only the real aggressors disagree with history.

Foreign Aid Certain to Face Debate

By WILBUR MARTIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — A multiyear foreign aid program, the first in history, comes before the House today. Debate is certain to focus on the administration's foreign policy, including conduct of the Viet Nam war.

In the past, Congress has authorized continuance of the foreign aid program for one year at a time. But the House bill contains a two-year authorization in all but two sections. Five-year authorizations would be allowed the Alliance for Progress program and economic development loans.

As approved by the committee, the measure authorizes $4.1 billion in spending for each of the two years. The administration, however, has placed a $3.3-billion price tag on the annual aid program.

The House version is a compromise with the administration. President Johnson advocated a five-year program with economic and military aid separated.

The bill lumps military and economic assistance into a single package but contains the multiyear authorization.

The bill does not contain funds for the Viet Nam war.

Reporting out the bill, the House Foreign Affairs Committee took an indirect swipe at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The majority House committee report noted that much of the criticism of foreign aid "reflects dissatisfaction with the world situation or with aspects of U.S. foreign policy."

Most of the problems that confront the United States in various parts of the world exist because of the initiative or the shortcomings of governments other than our own," it said.

Reporter Decided Not to Return

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A reporter finished his story and then decided not to return. Edward Lonis, 35, a roving reporter for the "Inmate's Bulletin" published by inmates of the Tennessee State Prison, escaped from a car as he was being driven back to the penitentiary after covering a story. "I'm just not sending out any members of the prison press any more," said warden C. Murray Henderson.

Candidates Bring Up Little New

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Frank Holt delved into his educational and mental health programs Monday night in a 30-minute statewide television address as Arkansas' nine gubernatorial candidates entered the final two weeks of campaigning.

All the candidates — Democrats Brooks Hays, Jim Johnson, Dale Alford, Sam Boyce, Raymond Rebsamen, Kenneth Sulcer and Holt and Republicans Winthrop Rockefeller and Gus McMillan—appeared on a one-hour program over KARK TV and Radio in Little Rock.

The candidates primarily listed their qualifications and reiterated earlier campaign statements in the five minutes allotted each on a program entitled, "I Want to Be Governor."

The primary election for parties is two weeks from today.

Holt said if he were elected he would establish two more regional mental health units, increase the number of vocational-technical schools and increase teacher salaries.

In the field of mental health, Holt said he would recommend that legislation be enacted to establish two more regional mental health centers, to provide a wage scale for hospital personnel comparing with that of other states, to build and support a facility for mentally retarded children and to continue to enlarge the Children's Colony at Conway.

Holt said a study reveals that teacher salaries could be increased through additional funds expected from an increase in tax revenues.

In a news release from his headquarters, Boyce called for a sick leave policy for Arkansas' teachers, saying such a policy would "eliminate many of the undesirable situations which now exist."

He said several districts have adequate sick leave policies, but that a majority have insufficient policies or none at all. "A beginning teacher should have at least five days a year for sick leave with the possibility of accumulations up to one month," Boyce said.

In his five-minute television appearance Boyce said he was the only Democratic candidate who had not begged for the support of the political establishment in the state.

King Declares Nonviolent War on Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has declared a nonviolent war on Chicago and Mayor Richard J. Daley.

King announced a "nonviolent assault" on the city and Daley after a two-hour meeting with Daley Monday. The meeting was "very disappointing," said King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We are demanding, not begging," he told newsmen. "Our (the Negro) vote can and will be the balance of power."

"I do not think that the mayor understands the depth or dimension of the problem. If nothing is done, we are inviting a social disaster."

Daley told newsmen: "We asked them for their solution. They did not have any. All they could do was recite problems."

But another civil rights leader said King and Daley were "closer than ever before because of the meeting."

Dr. Edwin Berry, director of the Chicago Urban League, said the meeting "is the beginning of a concerted campaign."

"The mayor called on us to help him make Chicago an open city after Dr. King had called on the mayor for an open city," he said in an interview.

Virginia to Nominate Senators

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Democrats name their nominees for both U. S. Senate seats today in a primary election that will provide a new assessment of whether the Byrd organization's traditional conservatism still appeals to voters.

A half million or more voters are expected to take part in the election that could sharply alter the Virginia image on Capitol Hill. The polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Besides the twin-bill Senate primary in which Sens. Harry F. Byrd Jr. and A. Willis Robertson have been pressed by challengers, from the moderate-liberal wing of the party, a mainstay of the old-line conservatives is involved in a fight for his seat in the House.

Rep. Howard Smith, 83, who seldom faced more than token opposition in 36 years of representing the 8th District, was forced into an active campaign by the race of his opponent, George C. Rawlings Jr., 44, a delegate in the Virginia House.

Talks in Air Strike Seem Discouraging

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds described as discouraging today the outlook for settlement of the strike against five major airlines.

Reynolds, a veteran negotiator in railroad and shipping strikes, told The Associated Press in advance of the scheduled midmorning resumption of negotiations between representatives of the airlines and the striking machinists' union.

"There's been very little progress. The positions of the parties are very fixed at the moment."

But he said also "the important thing is that the parties live up to their responsibilities and make their own decisions. We're doing everything to help them meet their responsibilities to themselves, to the public, to labor and management."

Reynolds was discussing the Labor Department's part in mediating the five-day-old dispute that has halted 60 per cent of the nation's air transportation and is costing the airline industry and labor about $8 million a day.

While the strike goes on, nonstrike airlines, bus lines and railroads are reporting booming business.

There still are eight major national issues — wages being the principal problem — and 38 local issues unresolved. Mainly, the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists is asking to be allowed to share in the prosperity that has fallen to the airlines in the past year or two.

"After all these years when they have accepted substandard conditions, airline employees are entitled to a better deal," said Joseph W. Ramsey, vice president of the union and its chief negotiator.

The airlines have increased their wage offer from the original 30 cents an hour increase to 44 to 48 cents, the figure recommended by a presidential emergency board that looked into the situation. The union has stood on its original request for a 53-cent-an-hour increase.

Planes Elude Missiles in Bomb Raids

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. fliers tangled with two MIG21s and eluded a barrage of missiles over North Viet Nam during bombing raids on missile, radar and fuel sites, the U.S. command reported today.

Carrier planes pounced on some 200 barges and junks and pilots reported destroying or damaging 59 of them.

The U.S. command announced the loss of an F105 Thunderchief to Communist groundfire Monday. The pilot bailed out but he could not be rescued because of heavy antiaircraft fire and is listed as missing, a spokesman said.

U.S. headquarters also announced that a Navy F8 Crusader went down 40 miles northeast of Haiphong today and that the pilot was rescued. It was not known whether the plane crashed because of mechanical failure or was shot down, a spokesman said.

A military spokesman said 286 U.S. planes had been lost to enemy action over North Viet Nam through last Thursday. With at least four more planes lost since then, the unofficial total now stands at 290 since the bombing began Feb. 7, 1965.

As for the first time, the American command said 179 had been the victims of enemy fire, including three in North Viet Nam. The latter presumably were on missions to rescue downed American airmen.

A U.S. spokesman said the figures losses did not include helicopters and planes destroyed on the ground when the Com-
